

Fly Fishing for Common Ground, Healing, and Hope

A Timely New Book Club and Discussion Group

Tuesdays, March 5, 12, 19, 26, 2024
6:00 – 7:30 pm CST via Zoom

Free Program Limited to 15

Home is ... a connection that cannot be built from wood and brick. A connection that grabs and pulls you, as a trout is hooked by a fly.... I feel young and old, safe and unsure. I feel closer to those I love, yet perfectly alone, uncluttered by the responsibilities of life and completely immersed in life's essential currents. I am home.

-Quinn Grover, Wilderness of Hope

We can choose to tear things and people down or build them up. Everything in life is a choice. Making no choice is an act of apathy, and apathy is a choice. What does this have to do with fishing and friendships? Everything.

-Steve Ramirez, Casting Onward

Discover Common Ground in Fly Fishing

- Explore fly fishing and nature as a lens to finding common ground and respectful dialogue in divisive times.
- Apply problem solving skills from the stream to understand and restore cultural and ecological harmony.
- Read and discuss treasured literature of fly fishing that inspires wisdom, renewal, and hope.
- Review individual and collective choices that impact the environment and how we want to live together.

Your Guide

Steve Ehrlich, frequent fisher at Westover Farms, lifelong educator in adult learning, psychology, and professional development. Retired teacher and dean, Washington University.

Registration and Inquiries

Email: steveehrich76@gmail.com lisa.schlueter@westoverfarms.com

Call: Steve (314) 827-7204 Lisa (573) 743-6284

Once registered you will receive additional information about readings.

Sponsored by Westover Farms, Missouri's Premier Fly Fishing Destination

